Rationale

Nurture Training and Development radicalisation policy and procedure is designed to prevent any radicalisation activities taking place internally by outlining key responsibilities of staff and to support the process of monitoring, identification, recording, reporting and referrals of radicalisation concerns. This is to ensure the safety and well-being of staff, learners, customers, and other stakeholders throughout their journey with us.

Policy

Gov.UK (2021) defines radicalisation process as “Radicalisation can be seen as a two-stage process. The first stage encompasses an attitudinal journey, where a vulnerable individual begins to hold extremist views – vulnerabilities being influenced by background factors (e.g. criminality, troubled family background), experiences and influences (e.g. friends and family), and unmet psychological needs (e.g. for belonging and status). The second stage focuses on behaviours, where extremist views turn into violent actions influenced by social, emotional or experiential factors. Within both stages there are opportunities to proactively and reactively support individuals and families to protect them from the risks of radicalisation.

It is important to highlight that radicalisation concerns can be identified and reported by any person(s) who may suspect radicalisation activities, furthermore, any person may be vulnerable at certain points in their life and become more susceptible to ideology influencers; however, there is a broad agreement over factors that influence peoples vulnerability, these include:

- History of criminality
- Unmet psychological needs
- Relative influence

Now that a rationale and a definition has been provided this policy will aim to outline how to monitor, identify, report, refer and review any radicalisation concern.

We have, furthermore, included contact details of the internal safeguarding teams and external agencies for the ease of access to information; we have also included a “referrals form” to support the reporting process and the type of information to be recorded in the event of a safeguarding concern arising to ensure effective processes.

The company aims to put Prevent in practice through the following:

- ⇒ Challenging violent extremist ideology and support for it
- ⇒ Disrupting those who promote violent extremism and, in the places, where they may be active
- ⇒ Supporting individuals who are being targeted and recruited to the cause of violent extremism
- ⇒ Increasing the resilience of the service to withstanding radicalisation and extremism particularly where the risks are relatively high
- ⇒ Addressing the political, religious, social, cultural and economic grievances that are being exploited through the extremist ideology and behaviour

Extremism and radicalisation

All education settings have a legal duty to protect young people from the risk of radicalisation and being drawn into extremism. There are many reasons why a young person might be vulnerable to radicalisation;

- feeling alienated or alone
- seeking a sense of identity or individuality
- suffering from mental health issues such as depression
- desire for adventure or wanting to be part of a larger cause
- associating with others who hold extremist beliefs

Signs of radicalisation

Signs that a person might be at risk of radicalisation include:

- changes in behaviour, for example becoming withdrawn or aggressive
- claiming that terrorist attacks and violence are justified viewing violent extremist material online
- possessing or sharing violent extremist material

If a member of staff suspects that a person is at risk of becoming radicalised, they will record any relevant information or observations on a “referrals form” and refer to this policy to ensure the correct revised response.

If any person(s) has a concern the same process should be followed.

The key duties of the Prevent Duty are based on the following four themes:

- Promote local partnerships;
- safeguarding risk assessment;
- Undertake staff training;
- Ensure the development and implementation of policies relating to Information Communication Technology;

Other policies include:

- Safeguarding policy (staff)
- Safeguarding policy (apprentice)
- Safeguarding booklet
- Safe internet use and technology policy
- Staff training policy
- Safer recruitment policy

Review

Any reported concern must be followed up to ensure that the correct reporting lines are being followed and that the process is been dealt with accordingly, this process is just as important to ensure that safeguarding concerns are being managed effectively, it is also important to ensure this is happening as we may have to make referrals and work with external agencies.

This policy is reviewed annually, using government information to ensure the correct revised levels.

The Designated Safeguarding Lead must ensure that the responsiveness and effectiveness of this policy is working at the correct revised level providing the designed outcome, should there be any limitation in the process, the policy and procedure must be revised.
